Introduction

Looking at the historical aspects of the pedagogic profession, its emergence and development, we understand that the formation of the pedagogic profession is inextricably linked with the history of personal development. The teaching profession is one of the most important and significant professions in the life of modern society. The higher the level of personality and professional training (reputation, role model) of the pedagogue, the better the educational and educational relations with the students, the thoughts of the pedagogue, the behavior and work of the learner. the evaluation he gives affects how he interprets his own achievements and shortcomings. The student's interpretation of the achievement achieved in the educational process is stronger than considering it as a coincidence or luck.

The famous pedagogue Abdulla Avloni also pays special attention to expressing views on the personality of the pedagogue and his activities in his works. According to Alloma, if parents play a special role in the healthy growth of a child, the teacher's role in his intellectual development is incomparable. In particular, he emphasized that the formation of children's intellectual abilities is a "sacred task that rests on the attention of teachers and is entrusted to their conscience" and says that "it depends on the strength, ornamentation, breadth of thought, and the education of the teacher." The famous pedagogue-humanist of his time, the Czech writer Jan Amos Comenius highly valued the role of the teacher in the development of the child's worldview and wrote that teaching is "a very proud profession that is higher than any other profession on earth." According to the author, it is necessary for a pedagogue to be able to deeply understand his duties and fully appreciate his own value.

In their time, Abu Nasr Farabi, Abu Rayhan Beruni, Abu Ali ibn Sina, Alisher Nawai, Jan Amos Comensky, Leo Tolstoy, Abdullah Avloni and others reflected in their works the teaching profession, its hardships, as well as the personality of the teacher. They have shown that they have a pedagogical culture by clarifying the views on the qualities that are necessary to achieve. Therefore, a person who does not understand the essence of the pedagogical process and does not have deep respect for the child will not have an opinion that ensures the effectiveness of education and human maturity. At the heart of their pedagogical culture is the ability to understand the child, to treat him humanely, to correctly assess the situation, to eliminate conflicts that may arise in time, and to implement the noble ideas that are instilled in the minds of students in the pedagogical process. It is reflected in the belief that it is a powerful tool for ensuring its existence.

In the era of globalization, science and technology development, major reforms carried out in general education schools require changing the content of education, as well as management of the education system based on the requirements of today's times. Today's participants of education are organizing their relationship to their students and education by thinking and communicating in a new way, from the educational outlook of 10 years ago. Therefore, today's pedagogue should appear as a person who has a new style and is able to perfectly organize all-round work. The Law "On Education" adopted in our country on September 24, 2020 and the application of the priority areas specified in it in practice based on new methods Republican preschool education, higher and secondary special education and post-higher education it also depends on the moral image and professional skills of teachers, educators, and production masters working in the system. The work of educating a person is an extremely complex process, and mature people of society have been involved in this activity since ancient times. This situation means that the education of the young generation, the content of its organization, is important in determining not only the development of the individual, but also the development of the society. If a person chooses the profession of pedagogy, then he must be fully compatible with the personality of a pedagogue and the requirements imposed on him. Here, let's focus on the requirements for a modern pedagogue today:

- the pedagogue, first of all, should be thoughtful, accurate, able to assess the situation correctly, and be able to resolve existing conflicts;
- it is appropriate to pay attention to the clear and complete expression of his opinion in the process of communication with his students, parents and colleagues. In the process of dealing with them, it is not necessary to give evidence about negative situations, but on the contrary, recognition of the student's (or colleague's, parents') successes, confidence in their further enrichment, allows to establish a positive relationship with him.
- in the process of communication, the teacher's words show benevolence, sincerity, friendly attitude towards the interlocutor, as well as being in an upbeat mood as much as possible, it is part of the requirements and rules from the point of view of professional ethics.
- while participating in the process of raising a mature generation, the pedagogue should not only be an example to others with his spiritual and moral culture, but at the same time, he should be able to demonstrate his pedagogic skills, learn to make his proper contribution to the work of training qualified personnel as a mature pedagogue. knowing that it is his professional duty;
- development on the basis of constant improvement of pedagogical knowledge, awareness of news, assimilation of advanced technologies;
- to improve their qualifications and skills in designated educational centers, to constantly participate in scientific conferences - theoretical and practical conferences and seminars, pedagogical studies and trainings, to share their work experience in leading educational institutions of Uzbekistan and developed foreign countries it is necessary to study.

The image of a teacher that meets these requirements ensures that he gains respect among students, colleagues and parents.

Today, honorable President Sh.Mirziyoyev has decided to raise the prestige and status of teachers and trainers in the society, to completely revise the curriculum and methodology, to connect the school with the next stages of education. "relieves teachers from excessive paperwork, creates conditions and encourages them to work more on themselves, and sets specific tasks regarding solutions to issues such as improving school infrastructure and the moral environment in it. Due to the fact that ample conditions are being created for private educational institutions in our country, suggestions are being made as an experiment, such as giving the schools that are working at low capacity to the reliable management of potential applicants on the basis of competition, as well as the attention paid to this process of education at the level of the Head of State - to future pedagogues like us, the personality of the pedagogue and the attention given to him It is a responsible call for us to get quality education in accordance with the requirements and work tirelessly on ourselves.

In conclusion, it can be said that having pedagogical skills based on the above requirements is not only a guarantee of ensuring the effectiveness of education, but at the same time, it also increases the teacher's reputation in the community, students' respect for him is formed. goes Organization of practical actions to improve professional skills - to get rid of mistakes made or made in pedagogical activities, to achieve success in relations with students, colleagues and parents.
