Introduction

Individual educational and ideological work is not scheduled on the agenda, but after basic training, independent preparation or personal content can be carried out at personal and leisure times, as well as on Saturdays and Sundays of the week.

Individual moral and spiritual activities are regularly conducted with military personnel. The results of a single-order moral and spiritual work conducted by the command, military administrations, commanders, and their deputies with military personnel under their control are recorded in the "Diary for the Study of Individual Psychological Characteristics of an Individual."

(Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these answers with you. It differs from other forms of training in its effectiveness, effectiveness and one purpose and ease of use for all categories of military personnel.

The uniqueness and advantages of individual discipline and ideological work include:

accuracy – when he was focused on separate military personnel;

targeted – when it aims for specific educational purposes;

speed – when it can be conducted in any situation and regularly;

high effectiveness is the purpose of each individual by using separate methods of discipline.

Only if all commanders and chiefs are in continuous contact with and close to subordinate military personnel will single-order moral and spiritual activities achieve the goals set before them.

To assist individuals desiring to benefit the worldwide work of Jehovah's Witnesses through some form of charitable giving, a brochure entitled Charitable Planning to Benefit Kingdom Service Worldwide has been prepared.

The main areas of individual educational and ideological work are:

- planning the work of studying them separately in educating those under their control;
- organize the work of commanders, chiefs, officers of the headquarters, junior commanders and activists in the process of conducting separate practical work with personal content, teaching and conducting practical work;
- assistance and control over officers and sergeants, activists in the organization of individual educational and ideological work;
- share and generalize the experience of conducting one-order work among commanders and activists;
- analyze the state of discipline and ideology carried out in a single order and find ways to address its shortcomings;
- constant analysis of the results of individual educational and ideological work;
- promotion and promotion of advanced experiences through the press;
- encourage small commanders and activists for exemplary work between personal content.

The results of individual educational and ideological work are recorded on a diary of studying the individual psychological characteristics of military personnel and individuals.

Methods of discipline and ideology in a single order :

- tracking;
- studying documents;
- a one-order conversation.

Observation involves conducting the subordinate in different conditions and studying his or her attitude toward different situations. The process of observation focuses on the submissive's appearance with the inner world—his expression on his face, changes in mood, mimicry, and gestures.

Studying documents plays an important role in producing an initial impression of the subordinate being studied. Through the documents, we may collect such information as the subordinate's surname, patronymic, patronymic, year of birth, month, nationality, family status, specialty and behavior, health, and so on. Personal documents are carefully studied.

One-order conversation is a method that is the main method of single-order moral and spiritual work. It allows everyone to study deeply, to have an educational influence, and to mobilize them to carry out any task. Therefore, it is the duty of each commander and team activist to master the style of conducting a one-order conversation.

One-order conversations are primarily conducted with:

- with subordinates who grew up in a family whose parents did not die;
- with those who often changed their workplace for no reason during the period up to the service, who were subjected to administrative penalties;

- with those who are prone to violation of military discipline;
- with those who have false reputations (negative leaders) among their peers;
- with those who are not physically well developed and have any physical or mental disabilities;
- with those who will be laughing among their partners in their actions and statements;
- is carried out with those who have been given alcohol consumption during the period up to service.
